Hi we are going to need to talk about what we do about the shortages of gowns coming over the horizon. Why can we not use waterproof table clothes or any other material that we can make up and disinfect. It would be a travesty to tell nurses to go into it bare below the elbows without other protection. If we can build ventilators there must be a solution to this. Plastic apron under the not Git for purpose gowns we have purchased. I do really want help.

Also if the virus doesn't survive on late surfaces for more than 96 hours. Recycle gowns that are in tact rather than incinerate. Subject them to a 5 day quarantine period.

Yes that is a very good argument. We are looking at all options - very important we keep the front line onside & supported

This isn't a PR job we are on side we are going to work I am volunteering
But already this morning leaders are telling those requiring PPE yesterday to forget it today. I am very concerned Matt.

Yes. We've absolutely got to stick to the use we all agreed last week - that is the reason we put so much effort into getting it right!

He needs to know how many you want. I have sent so many offers up the line with no response. I know the sensitivities but I am so concerned about this.
